

Didier Pflieger is Chief Operating Officer/President for the Power and Process division, having been appointed in December 2007. He was previously Head of Business Unit Systems of ABB Robotics and has extensive experience in the energy, power and process industries.

Mike Saunders is President of the global Nuclear business, having been appointed in 2007. He was previously Senior Vice President of Strategy and Integration at Westinghouse following the acquisition by Toshiba. Immediately before this he was Senior Vice President for the Global Nuclear Fuel Business and has extensive experience of the nuclear industry having managed nuclear licensed sites in the UK, Europe and the USA.

Gerry McGill Gerry McGill is responsible for the Management and Operations business within AMEC's Nuclear business. He is vice chairman of Nuclear Management Partners, the AMEC Joint Venture which runs the Sellafield site in Cumbria, UK. He is also a director of the Pentland Alliance, a joint venture with UKAEA for the operation of the Dounreay site. He has 30 years industrial experience, 25 of which were in the Oil and Gas industry and 5 in Nuclear. He is a member of the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors

Clive White is Vice President of AMEC's nuclear business, responsible for UK operations. He holds a physics degree and has 25 years experience in the defence and nuclear industries. He has held a variety of management posts in AMEC and has a successful track record of growing, positioning and managing both consultancy and project delivery businesses.

Frank Winter is Vice President of AMEC's nuclear business and is a chartered engineer, with executive level experience in commercial and project management. He has previously held senior executive positions within the nuclear industry and has a proven track record of leading and delivering change and accelerated nuclear decommissioning in a cost-constrained, competitively won management and operations (M&O) contract environment.